Quick Facts about Young Voters in Arkansas: The Midterm Election Year 2006

By Mark Hugo Lopez, Karlo Barrios Marcelo, and Jared Sagoff<sup>1</sup>
Updated June 2007

The 2006 midterm election was the second major election in a row that saw an increase in the electoral participation of young people ages 18-29. Between 2002 and 2006, the percentage of eligible young people who voted increased by 3 percentage points to 25 percent, the single largest increase among all age groups nationally.<sup>2</sup> However, while youth electoral participation improved between 2002 and 2006 nationally, in Arkansas, the youth voter turnout rate remained unchanged from 2002 to 2006 (21 percent). Overall, Arkansas ranked 40th (tied with HI and NC) among all states and the District of Columbia in 2006, down from 33rd in 2002, and was four percentage points lower than the nation as a whole.

This fact sheet reports the characteristics of young voters for the state of Arkansas, including estimates of the number of young voters, and voter turnout rates in 2006 and 2002 for various sub-groups of young people.

Voter Turnout Statistics, 2006

In 2006, a midterm election year, young people in Arkansas who are eligible to vote in U.S. elections cast 88 thousand votes. Table 1 shows voting statistics for the years 2006 and 2002.

Voter Turnout Rates in 2006 and 2002 Among Eligible Young Citizens

Table 2 displays voter turnout rates for various groups of young people in 2006 and 2002 in Arkansas. In 2006, voter turnout among many youth groups in Arkansas was very low. Only among young people with a BA or more was the voter turnout rate at 40 percent or more. Also, young men saw an increase in voter participation between 2002 and 2006, while young women saw a decline in their voter turnout rate over the same period.
